

SAYS HYDE TOLD HIM OF $2,000,000 SUBWAY FUND

Builder of Harlem Tunnel Claims Fee Was Offered for Contract.

McBEAN TELLS OF TALK WITH GAYNOR'S FRIEND

Thompson Committee Witness Swears Builders Made $11,000,000 Profit.

Senator Thompson got a yelp out of the so-called "yellow dog fund" which his committee long has been prodding in relation to the subway contracts, at yesterday's hearing. The mystic figure of $2,000,000, which had hitherto been tentatively ascribed to such a fund during the course of the investigation of the Public Service Commission, cropped out again in the testimony of Duncan B. McBean, the contractor and engineer who built the Harlem River tunnel.

McBean testified that prior to the awarding of the Bradley-Lexington Avenue subway contracts, Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain and close friend of Mayor Gaynor, had told him that he, Hyde, had been offered $2,000,000 to get these contracts. The witness denied that any one should have offered Hyde that sum of money as an acceleration fee at that time.

"Mr. Hyde frequently came to the Waldorf, where I live, to see friends," said Mr. McBean, "and I met him there. One of his statements made there was that he had been offered $2,000,000 to have the Bradley-Lexington Avenue contracts awarded."

"Was that statement made before the award of these contracts?" asked Mr. Moss.

The witness said it was.

"Did he say who offered him that?" asked Mr. Moss.

"No, I didn't question him about it," McBean replied.

At another time, the witness said, Mr. Hyde sent for him to come to his office and told him that he had been asked by some people to assist in having certain contracts awarded to John F. Stevens. McBean said that the former City Chamberlain, in his presence, wrote a letter to Gaynor. The letter was introduced in evidence by Mr. Moss at a previous hearing in an effort to show that Mr. Hyde had some possible influence in subway matters.
